

Media Contact:
Lee Ann Cornelius
225 SE Main St
Portland OR 97214
503.963.3524
www.kavi.com

Kavi Introduces New Release: Workspace 5

Kavi Corporation unveils Workspace 5, the newest iteration of Kavi's leading software-as-a-service solution for standards development and management.

Portland, OR, March 24, 2009 - Kavi Corporation announces the newest release of its core product: Workspace 5, designed to drive participation in standards development processes via an intuitive, user-friendly interface.

A redesign of the application's main pages and navigation results in an enhanced experience for users. The addition of several pages, such as Home and My Participation, emphasize user involvement and contributions to standards activity. Actionable lists of upcoming tasks and events featured on these pages keep users informed of ways to participate in the organization, leading to increased contributions and involvement in standards development.

Administrative improvements in managing and reporting are also a fundamental part of this release. A revamped Admin Panel provides a centralized location for the most common administrative functions, and changes to the reporting page simplify access to key reports and data. Administrators can in turn use this valuable information to guide them in managing their organization and membership.

These enhancements improve interaction with the application for both users and administrators, resulting in streamlined standards development across the organization. By equipping users and administrators with robust tools facilitating participation, organizations increase satisfaction amongst their members and speed standards processes at all levels.

"Workspace is now cleaner, crisper, and easier-to-use than previous versions," says Chris Gift, VP of Marketing at Kavi. "We are delighted to have met our objective of providing users with a more participation-focused experience, and we look forward to helping customers further improve standards processes using Kavi applications."

Workspace 5 is currently in beta testing, with rollout to new and existing customers planned for the coming months. More information on the application is available at www.kavi.com/products/ws5.

About Kavi Corporation

Kavi is the global technological leader for associations and standards organizations, offering software-as-a-service solutions that facilitate standards development and management processes. Kavi counts some of the largest and most influential standards bodies as customers and has over ten years of experience serving the standards community. Further information is available at www.kavi.com.

###